CASE STUDY 1

Ken is a Community Development Worker working for a mine. Ken has travelled to Kerewa, a village near the mine, to conduct awareness about HIV & AIDS. During community entry Ken asked the key people if he should conduct awareness with men and women together, or in separate groups. The key people said that men and women should be together.

Ken began the awareness by giving the participants statistics about the number of infections of people near the mine. He then asked the participants to tell stories about their own experience of HIV & AIDS. All participants had stories to tell about friends or family who had been infected or who had died. Ken then showed a video which told the story of a family destroyed by AIDS. Ken then conducted a brainstorm activity. He asked participants to brainstorm what they already knew about HIV & AIDS. Ken then gave a detailed history of HIV & AIDS and how it infects people. He then explained the Government's policy of A, B, C (Abstain, Be Faithful, or always use a Condom). Ken asked the women and men if it was okay if he could use a model diwai-kok to show how to put on a condom and they said it was okay. Ken used a diwai-kok to demonstrate how to put on a condom properly. To find out if there were misunderstandings or confusion Ken asked if there were any questions. The men had a few questions, which Ken answered, but the women remained silent. At the end of the awareness Ken gave out pamphlets on how to prevent HIV & AIDS.
